

British Journal of Industrial Medicine

An anatomy of occupational medicine	W. R. Lee	111
Emergence of occupational medicine in Victorian times	W. R. Lee	118
Measurement of urinary hippuric and m-methylhippuric acids by gas chromatography	J. P. Buchet and R. R. Lauwerys	125
Biochemical basis for the toxic effects of triethyl lead	L. Galzigna, M. V. Ferraro, G. Manani, and A. Viola	129
Parameters indicative of absorption and biological effect in new lead exposure: a prospective study	S. Tola, S. Hernberg, S. Asp, and J. Nikkanen	134
Histamine-releasing activity and bronchoconstricting effects of sisal	P. J. Nicholls, Elizabeth Evans, F. Valić, and Eugenija Žuškin	142
Relationship of maximum aerobic power output to productivity and absenteeism of East African sugar cane workers	C. T. M. Davies	146
Ventricular fibrillation threshold for AC sinus rhythm and acid-base state	Janet R. Scott	155
Occupational exposure to asbestos: a review of epidemiological and clinical potential	Janet R. Scott and C. T. M. Davies	162
Primary hazard assessment of occupational exposure to asbestos: a committee on Research and Development	David Ferguson	174
Lead poisoning	J. A. Bonnell	180
Long-term occupational exposure to the insecticides aldrin, dieldrin, endrin, and telodrin	J. P. J. Versteeg and K. W. Jager	187
Book reviews		199
Information section		201
		203
		207

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF MEDICINE
INDEX COPY

REC'D. MAY 30 1973

INDEX JUN 19 1973

INPUT JUL 9 1973

Priority

② C
J
M

AXS

③ Vol-Iss-Pt 30-2

④ Suppl

⑤ Publ Date APR 73

⑥ Arts 15

⑦ I/I 39

IR/ 26

1730618

INDEX MEDICUS