

British Journal of Industrial Medicine

People and work: some contemporary issues Sylvia Shimmin	93
The purposes of occupational medicine P. A. B. Raffle	102
Circadian variation in physiological responses to exercise on a stationary bicycle ergometer C. T. M. Davies and A. J. Sargeant	110
Carboxyhaemoglobin levels of smokers and non-smokers in the City of London C. M. Castleden and P. V. Cole	115
A comparison of concentrations of lead in human tissues P. S. I. Barry	119
Effects of a single exposure to carbon disulphide on the rate of urea production and on plasma free fatty acid and glucose concentrations in the rat V. J. Cunningham	140
Dust exposure in manual flax processing in Egypt M. H. Noweir, Y. M. El-Sadik, A. A. El-Dakhakhn, and H. A. Osman	147
Application of blood cadmium determination to industry using a punched disc technique A. A. Cernik and M. H. P. Sayers	155
Notes and miscellanea
Myoglobinuria and renal failure in toluene poisoning E. Reisin, A. Teicher, R. Jaffe, and H. E. Eliahou	163
Recent progress in the study of occupational lung diseases in Pilat, and D. Teculescu	164
	169
	175

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF MEDICINE
INDEX COPY

REC'D. JUN 19 1975

INDEX AUG 1 1975

INPUT

PRI	ABST	SL	C
① H <sub>0</sub>	C: 28	③ ARTS 10
④ ISSN	AXS
⑤ PUBL DATE	MAY 75
⑥ VOL	32
⑦ NO	PT	SUPPL
2

ASTM CODEN: BJIMAG 32(2) 93-180 (1975)

British Medical Association Tavistock Square London WC1H 9JR