

British Journal of Industrial Medicine

Prediction of mortality from myocardial infarction in industrial factory workers M. J. MacMahon and G. Sany	147
Measuring liver disorders in shift workers: non-invasive methods using grey-scale ultrasonography D. M. J. Williams, P. M. Sany, K. J. W. Taylor, I. B. Gosses, and R. W. Duck	152
Loss of pulmonary elastic recoil in workers formerly exposed to asbestos (asbestos) in the diamond industry A. W. Hogg and G. Gandevia	156
Bronchitis: a follow-up study of cotton ginsery workers in the Sudan M. Odeh	160
Acute inhalation toxicity of cotton plant dusts G. Snella and M.-C. Snella	175
Energy expenditure and physiological performance of industrial male workers C. T. M. Davies, J. R. Brotherhood, K. J. Collins, C. Duff, F. Innes, J. Muirgow, J. S. Walker, M. A. Amin, H. M. Ismail, M. B. Karim, A. H. S. Dine, and M. Y. Bulcar	181
Urinary non-precipitable lead in lead workers M. Kawai	187
Erythrocyte fluorescence and lead intoxication K. G. A. Clark	193
Notes and miscellanea Parosmia and hyposmia induced by solvent exposure E. A. Emmett	196
Book reviews	199
Information section	202