

For your copy of the

BMJ

Book Catalogue

write now to

Books Marketing Department,
British Medical Journal, BMA House,
Tavistock Square, London WC1H 9JR.

NINTH INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON EPIDEMIOLOGY
IN OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH
Cincinnati, Ohio (USA)
September 23-25, 1992

The program will include:

- * Epidemiological methods
- * Occupational surveillance
- * Cancer
- * Reproductive effects
- * Respiratory diseases
- * Musculoskeletal disorders
- * Occupational injuries
- * Exposure assessment

Workshops will be held on September 22,
preceding the Symposium.

Further information can be obtained from:
National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, Robert A. Taft Laboratories, 4676
Columbia Parkway, MS-R16, Cincinnati, OH
USA 45226, Attn: Ms. Carlin Mills, telephone: (513) 841-4481, fax: (513) 841-4540

UK £8.95; Abroad £10.50
BMA members: £8.45 or £10.00
including postage by air abroad

How is no longer a problem — but there's still which and why

The microcomputer revolution has made powerful machines and highly complex programs generally available. This means that users of statistical techniques need no longer be concerned with the arithmetical and algebraic details — the software will take care of all that. What is vital, however, is to understand the ideas and the basic principles of statistical analysis. In Medical Statistics on Microcomputers R A Brown and J Swanson Beck show how to get the best use out of microcomputers when analysing data, particularly in the pathology laboratory. They explain the rational basis of various widely applicable statistical methods and also indicate their limitations so that you can make an informed choice. Chapters include:

- Data handling
- Analysis of data from one or two groups
- Comparison of several groups
- Analysis of categorical data
- Statistical methods for diagnostic tests.

Available from: BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL, PO BOX 295, LONDON WC1H 9TE, any leading bookseller or the BMJ/BMA bookshop in BMA House.

Please enclose payment with order, or send us full details of your MASTERCARD, VISA or AMERICAN EXPRESS credit card.